Those Suits Are Here.

Duck Eton Suits delayed in transit arrived this morning. We spologize for not calculating for the stupidity of others. However, the fact that over one hundred ladies have waited for them would make it seem that such Suits cannot be had elsewhere for $1.98. All sizes and styles will await you Monday. $7.50 is a price we and others have taked for Serge Eton Suits. We make a bold assertion when we state that this morning's arrivals are superior to any previously ofered here at $7.50. They come in navy and black, plain and braided. Sizes 32 to 42.

75c yard for the 45-inch "Cotelo."

Wash Fabrics and Embroid=

When you see the qualities then will the prices surprise you: 17e yard for White Duck that is 29 inches wide and usually judged worth 25c yard. Another lot of Swisses that will cause even more talk than the late bargains. 25c and 30c yard for Plain White Swiss in qualities worth 35 and 45c yard. Dotted Swiss, that you will recognize as 35c quality, is here at only 25c yard, in white, light blue and pink.

To give the prices of the new Embroideries is misleading, unless we can convince you that the qualities belong to much higher-priced goods. The splendid collection of Swiss Embroideries, 6 to 9 inches wide, at 25c and 30c yard, include those worth 50c yard. The lot of Cambric Embroideries, 3 to 4 inches wide, at 25c a yard for choice, include Embroideries worth 60c yard. Not a yard of Laces That Are Cheap.

The following new lots are distributed at a loss to the importer, hence cheap, but good: First, the White Laces. There are a dozen match sets of Duchess Lace (so called), so like the real that we point to this Lace as the latest and most wonderful specimen of machine work. Of course, the following prices do not represent their worth: 16c yard for 3-inch wide, 22c for 4-inch, 25c for 5-inch, 40c for 8-inch, 48c yard for those 10 inches wide. These Laces are worth seeing. They will be admired for their beauty, and many uses for them will be thought of.

MAURESQUE LACE combines the effect of Oriental and Point de Irelande.

Now here at 28c, 44c, 50c and 68c, instead of 35c, 50c, 68c and 85c yard. Widths 516 to 12 inches.

A miscellaneous lot includes 11-inch-wide Oriental Laces, worth 50c, for only 50c yard, and 6-inch Normandy Val. Lace, worth 30c, for only 25c yard. Also a few pieces of French Val. Laces at only 20c a piece. BLACK LACES-Perhaps the best values in the new lots are the Chantilly and Bourdon Laces at 15c a yard for choice. They come 2% to 4% inches wide, some Another lot of Chantilly, Bourdon and Point d'Irelande Laces at 25c a yard for choice contains many worth 48c a yard. And a small lot of Choicest Black Bourdons at $1.48 for choice are worth up to $2.25 a yard.

Ribbons That Are Worn.

Remeval sale prices lower the cost of the most desirable Ribbons in every fashionable shade. 19c instead of 25c a piece for the much-worn Very Narrow Silk Ribbons—10 yards in a piece. The combination lot reduced to 25c a yard for choice includes 48c quality Satin Ribbon, in latest tints of blue and pink. And here is the Belting Ribbon that is a scarce and only 45c yard, white and colors. These are but hints of the Ribbon stock.

This is the first piece of advice that every one should piece of advice that every blanch rule learn by heart, for it is a simple rule that is the most disregarded. Why are you at the fair? If you come really to see it you must husband your strength and see it systematically and carefully. If you come only to say you have seen it, then you might as well walk through all the build-ings and go home. To really see the fair in such a way as to enjoy it you must have sufficient physical force to carry you comfortably along. There is no pleasure and little profit in dragging through the buildings with aching back and tired steps. Yet this is what nine people out of ten do. They sometimes keep an accurate account ings with aching back and tired steps. Yet this is what nine people out of ten do. They sometimes keep an accurate account of the distance they have walked and boast of it afterward. Recently a writer of some note declared that he had a writer of some note declared that he had a writer of some note declared that he had contented fair. Poor fellow! What could he had studied a hundred exhibits instead of merely glancing at ten thousand he would have done a great deal better. The best way is to spend only half the day at the fair. Decide what it is you want to see and then go and see it. Don't waste hours in going through exhibits that do not interest you.

Don't Spare the Questions. People are advised to ask questions of the guards or any other people who would be likely to answer them. Never set out to find a place without assistance.

Miss Eliza Barkhage of United States. the guards or any other people who would be likely to answer them. Never set out to find a place without assistance. You will simply be obliged to walk imrense distances to no purposes. Therefore, ask your way. Tell the guard what you want to see and he will tell you where it is. It is true you may encounter a stupid guard who will not be able to answer you intelligently. In that case don't chaff him or he will turn from stupid to insolent, and as he has the power you will simply get the worst of it, although you may be in the right, and this suggests another piece of advice which cannot be too rigidly remembered.

Obey all the regulations of the fair whether they are good or bad, and never imagine that an exception will be made in the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Denoty Baxter.

Miss Eliza Barkhages of Hyattsville is visiting Miss Wheatley at Oak Knoll. The Presbyterian Church at this place or completed and the Rev. P. P. Richards, Rev. B. F. Meyer and Elder Warfield have been appointed a committee of organisation.

The regular monthly meeting of the St. Paul's Library Association was held at the meeting was transacted an interesting musical and literary program was remeaved. Mrs. John Fawcett of Baltimore is visiting Mrs. Mary Fawcett.

Mrs. A. Roderick of Washington is the guests of Mrs. Fannle Powers.

Obey all the regulations of the fair whether they are good or bad, and never imagine that an exception will be made in your favor. There is a sign up in a section of the manufacturers' building which says: "Do not touch. This means you!" And this expresses the idea very concisely. Nearly every person in the crowd imagines that he is an exceptional person and may enjoy privileges that are denied others. The rules at that rate apply to few. It may as well be known in the beginning that the rules allow of no exceptions. It was only the other day that one of the highest tribunal connected with the fair, attempting to pass into the grounds without his badge, was denied admission and finally had a fight, and Vice President Stevenson, when he presented himself at the gate six weeks ago and begged to be allowed to pass through, having forgotten his ticket of admission, was promptly turned back and was obliged to send for one of the officials before he was allowed to pass. If men of this kind have such experiences what can you expect in your own case? You will find that it pays to accept the rules as you find that it pays to accept the rules as you find that it pays to accept the rules as you find that the people yourself. You will gain nothing by losing your temper. It has been noticed by all world's fair visitors that the crowds are unusually good-natured, and it is due probably to the fact that the people come expecting to be crowded and do not seriously object to it.

They Will Flirt All the Same.

Another piece of advice relates to those Another piece of advice relates to those people who are already at the fair and who know its ins and outs pretty well. When their friends come to Chicago they are usually ready to give, and they sometimes go about with these friends and show them those things that appear especially entirely the shalp control of the grounds and show them those things that appear especially entirely control of the grounds and sit down and have an all-day firitation with her. Remember the state of the grounds and sit down and have an all-day firitation with her. Remember the state of the grounds and sit down and have an all-day firitation with her. Remember the state of the grounds and then of going back without having seen anything of Chicago itself. It is quite as much one of the great sights; the whole world is talking not alone about the world's fair, but about Chicago also. You can see it by riding around in a cable car or in a coach, and you will not regret it. It is not so beautiful as Washington—there are, in fact, few portions of it that are not the readity, and interesting. It is wery big, and pretty of the say of the say of the say of the say at the fair. A quarter of a dollar is not much, but, if you keep spending quarters all day, you need not be surprised to find yourself without any money in the evening. Do not order your lunch or dinner and know how much it is going to cost. If the price seems to be too high get up and go on to another restaurant. Inquiry and so on to another restaurant. Inquiry on how has important point from some one wood and the state of the price of advice is to provide yourself without any money in the evening. Raising the Wind. A final piece of advice is to provide yourself with enough money for your trip before you start out on it. Nothing is more disagreeable than to raise money in a strange city, and especially so when you are not certain that you will be able to pay it back. But it is a nuissnce, too, to be the person who raises the money, and when you are regarded by your visiting friends as a banker of so much good nature that you cannot refuse any requests that come to you to advance funds the question is apt to assume a very serious phase. The trip to the world's fair is not a very expensive one, but it is not a cheap one, either. You can count up what it will cost before you leave. There is your railroad ticket first; then you can live in a good room for $1$ to $2$ a day. Your meals may cost you about $1.50 more. You can get through on $3$ a day, living comfortably and seeing most of the sights. You can live for a great deal more if you choose to do so, but that is your own lookout.

You are advised under all circumstances to come to the fair. If you have the money there is no way of spending it which is half so good; if you have not the money, and can borrow it, do so; if you have not the money, and can borrow it, do so; if you have not the money there is no way of spending it which is half so good; if you have not the money, and can borrow it, do so; if you have not the money and can borrow it, do so; if you have not the money and can borrow it, do so; if you have not the money.
